BELGIANS, REINFORCED, STILL HOLDING LIEGE

CAVALRY IN COMMAND OF KING OF BELGIUM HELMS GERMANS BETWEEN BELGIAN TROOPS AND FORT

HEAVY GUNS CONTINUE FIRE

Kaiser's Men are Finally Compelled to Fall Back on Main Column Near the River

FRENCH REINFORCEMENTS

Flying Cavalry Arrives Today and Others are Constantly Coming to Aid of Belgians

AN ARMISTICE IS REFUSED

Enraged by This, German Commander Orders Entire Army of Three Corps Against Liege

(By United Press.)
Brussels, August 8.—Belgian arms continue successful in the vicinity of Liege. King Albert in personal command of the entire Belgian cavalry force today attacked the German flank, hemming them between the advancing Belgian troops and the forts. At the same time the Liege forts continued their bombardment of the German position and the Germans were finally compelled to give way and retire on the main column near the river.

Despite the fact that the entire German army corps are engaged, they have been unable to penetrate the Belgian lines which have now been reinforced by a flying French cavalry column. French reinforcements are constantly arriving and the Belgian officials declare they can now hold the Liege forts indefinitely.

It is stated here that the German troops are in distress because their supply train has not come up. Belgian cavalry are cutting their communications and sweeping around them. The railroads have also been destroyed, and while the Germans are trying to restore it, they have been unable to do so up to the present. Reports that the Belgians were running out of ammunition received promptly and positive denial from officials here. They say the forces have enough ammunition to last them at least another month while there are plenty of reserve supplies which can be brought up from the supply depot.

The war office insists that today's fighting was a repetition of what has proceeded it in the last three days. The Germans, heavily reinforced, threw themselves time and again at the forts. The Belgian fire was reserved until the last moment and then when the Germans were massed at previously selected positions, the fire was concentrated on them with deadly effect.

The war office in an official statement reviewing the situation to date, declares that despite the fact that 125,000 Germans have been engaged they have been unable to make any impression on the Liege defense. The statement then says:

"For many days our little army with tenacity and courage rendered

NONE ON SERVIAN SOIL

Austrians are Successfully Repulsed by Serbs, Announced Today

(By United Press.)
Nish, Aug. 8.—Not a single Austrian soldier is now on Servian soil, it was officially stated at the war office today. The Austrians have been repulsed at Semendria and all other points. The crown prince, heading the main division of the Servian army, today assumed the offensive directing a determined attack upon the Austrian army.

SAY AUSTRIA WILL NOT HELP GERMANY

This is Sensational Assertion Today of Italian Officials, Giving New Angle to War

SHE REFUSES TO AID SHIPS

(By United Press.)
Rome, August 8.—The sensational declaration was made by Italian officials here today that Austria has declined to aid Germany against England. They declare that the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, expelled from Messina harbor yesterday, wirelessly the Austrian fleet to aid against the waiting British fleet and that the Austrian fleet returned with a flat refusal, declaring war had not yet been declared between Austria and England.

As a result of the refusal the German cruisers are in a desperate position. A combined French and English fleet is between them and safety.

GERMANY STARTS INVADING RUSSIA

Kaiser's Army of 40,000 Men, Supported by Warships, Marches on Capital of Finland

RUSSIAN TROOPS FALL BACK

(By United Press.)
Copenhagen, Aug. 8.—The real invasion of Russia by Germany is in progress. Reports received here today say that a German invading army of 40,000 men, supported by warships, have been landed at Skenae and are now marching on Helsingfors, the capital of Finland. The Germans have been opposed by Russian troops, but they are persisting in their advance and it is expected that Helsingfors will be taken. This movement is preliminary to a general invasion of Russia by Germany. From Helsingfors to St. Petersburg there is a direct line of railway along which it is expected the Germans will advance.

BRITISH SEND TROOPS ACROSS

Twenty-Two Thousand Men Started Across Channel Today and 100,000 More Will Follow.

TRANSPORTS IN WAITING

Details of Expedition Are Withheld. Line of Warships Protect Troops Vessels.

(By United Press.)
London, August 8.—England's army is nearly ready to strike. British troops are being rushed across the channel to France and Belgium. The German forces will find them waiting when the kaiser's army reaches Namur. The flower of the British army was sent across in transports today, numbering 22,000. One hundred thousand more men probably will be sent, for transports for that number are waiting to carry them.

Details of the expedition are withheld. It is known that a small fleet guarded the transports and that the British warships are stretched entirely across the channel to protect the transports.

The whereabouts of the main British fleet is still an impenetrable mystery. While rumors of a battle are circulated, the home secretary in the house of commons this afternoon explicitly denied that there had been a naval engagement. He insisted that the spreading of false news would have an evil effect on the British people.

FRENCH ARMY IS INVADING GERMANY

Attacks Kaiser's Stronghold at Mulhausen After Taking Altkirche in Violent Engagement

BIG GERMAN ARMY OPPOSES

(By United Press.)
Paris, August 8.—The French invading army was this afternoon attacking the fortifications that guard the German stronghold at Mulhausen sixty-one miles south of Strassburg. Following a victory over the Germans at Altkirche earlier today the French column advanced toward Mulhausen. This town is heavily fortified and the French advance is opposed by a large German army. Altkirche is in German territory about twenty miles southwest of Belfort. The German position there was carried by storm after a violent engagement in which both sides suffered. This announcement means that a French invasion of Germany is in progress. The German position is in Alsace on the line of German fortifications extending from Colmar, Germany, to Vase on the Swiss border.

INSPECTORS NAMED TODAY

County Commissioners Affirm Recommendations of S. M. Trabue, Democratic Chairman

FOR REGISTRATION OCT. 5

Inspectors Appoint Clerks Who are Suggested by Chairmen of Two Highest Parties

At a meeting of the county commissioners this morning inspectors for the October registration were appointed. From all indications there will be but the one registration as it is necessary to petition eighty days before the election in November before a registration can be held in September. The October registration will be held on Monday, October 5, or twenty-nine days before the election.

The commissioners, as required by law, appoint one inspector for each precinct. The names were suggested by Samuel L. Trabue, Democratic county chairman, and affirmed by the board. According to the law the inspectors will appoint the clerks. The names of the clerks are suggested to the inspectors by the county chairmen of the two political parties casting the highest vote in the county at the last general election. In this county the two clerks for every precinct will be Democrats and Republicans as these two parties were the highest at the last election.

Each party is entitled to a watcher at the registration. The Democratic chairman took care of the old guard of the party in making his selections. Especially is this true in Rushville township, where such men as B. A. Black, John Kelley, Frank Brown, and J. Milt Stiers have long had a controlling interest in the party. The following is the list of inspectors:

Ripley—No. 1—Peter J. Satter; No. 2—Charles Newlin; No. 3—Riley Ruby.
Posey—No. 1—John McCoy; No. 2—John P. Downey.

Just as the chautauqua officials were thinking of dividing the gate receipts with the weather man for his kindly treatment of them this week, the water gates were opened and the city was flooded about six o'clock last night. It rained more or less, mostly more, during the evening, and lightning kept the heaven aglow a good part of the time.

But even under these circumstances no seats in the immense Coliseum were available when Booker T. Washington, most famous man of the negro race, arose to speak. A large crowd was out in the afternoon to hear Lincoln McConnell and many remained for the evening program. This accounted, in a measure, for the large crowd at night. If the weather had been favorable it is believed the crowd would have been much larger.

The chautauqua will close Sunday with two lectures by Bishop Shepard and the prelude and a postlude at night by the Oxford, a mixed quartet of more than usual merit which came today to stay the remainder of the chautauqua. They gave the program this afternoon and tonight will sing the "Mikado," a Japanese light opera by Gilbert and Sullivan.

A large crowd was out this afternoon to hear Col. Bob Seeds, whose lecture abounded in sharp wit and humor, with a sprinkling of homely sayings and good advice that comes from a life of varied interests. He pleased as well as any lecturer who has been here.

"I wouldn't change places with the whitest man in the world," said Booker T. Washington last night. "I am thankful that I am a black man. Some time people ask me if I ever get discouraged. Of course I never do when I think of the work there is to do for my race. I am always reminded when people ask me that question, of my first experience at Tuskegee Institute.

"After the school had been started, we had to have more buildings. I told the students we would have to build them ourselves. So we had to make the brick. I had never made any bricks, but I thought we could. We made forty thousand brick and the kiln fell down when about half built. The same thing happened to the second and third trials, and each time we had made more brick. I thought the end was near when about three o'clock one morning a boy knocked at my door one morning

CAUSES HAVOC IN THIS COUNTY

Lightning Strikes Two Barns, Causing Them to Burn, and Damages Two Houses

ANNA HUDDLESON SCHOCKED

Heaviest Loss Suffered by Bert Dalrymple Southeast of Carthage—Just Buggy Saved

Considerable damage resulted from lightning last night in the storm that passed over Rush county. The electrical display was very brilliant and from all parts of the county come the reports of a fine rain. It did not rain as hard in this city as in other parts of the county. The lightning here was very much in evidence and a part of the electric light plant was put out of commission. Lightning ran in the plant and burnt out the fuse controlling the small street lights. Most of the city was in darkness.

The greatest loss from fire was sustained by Bert Dalrymple, living southwest of Carthage. A large barn on his farm was struck by lightning and burned. The only thing saved was a buggy. Mr. Dalrymple lost two horses, a number of wagons, implements, forty tons of hay and two hundred bushels of corn. He estimates his loss at $2,500, which is partially insured in the farmers' company.

A peculiar coincidence is that the home of Mrs. Anna Huddleson, mother-in-law of Mr. Dalrymple, in Dunreith, was struck by lightning about the same time. Mrs. Huddleson was severely shocked but the house did not burn. She was in a serious condition for some time.

A barn on the E. A. Frazee farm, near Orange was also destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $600, with some insurance, but not enough to cover the loss. One cow perished in the flames. The mow was full of hay and Mr. Frazee lost some farming implements. B. A. Snoddy lives on the Frazee farm.

A small barn belonging to Fred Banzendahl, at the south edge of Glenwood, was struck and burned. The barn was practically new and contained some grain. The horses were saved. Practically the entire population of Glenwood turned out to fight the fire and it was through the hardest kind of work that the house was saved.

The home of Lester Henry in Mays was struck but did not catch fire. The roof was considerably damaged.

—Mrs. Nathan Horr and Mrs. Thomas Kirk have returned from a several days visit with relatives in Indianapolis. They accompanied their brother Jerry Heny that far, as he went to Martinsville to take treatment for rheumatism.

European War Threatens to Postpone Opening of Schools Throughout Country

ARE MANY TEACHERS ABSENT

Hundreds Marooned in Countries Engaged in World War May Not Get Home for Some Time

(By United Press.)

New York, Aug. 8.—Causing the greatest consternation among educational authorities, but great joy to Young America, the European war threatens to cause a postponement of the opening of the schools throughout the country.

Advices received here today indicate that hundreds of American school teachers are marooned in France, Germany, England and other European countries now in a state of war. Those in Germany have but small chance of getting out, possibly for months. It is practically certain that so long as Germany is engaged in war they will not be able to leave except at the greatest risk.

Colleges also report that scores of professors are among the Americans marooned on the continent. Columbia and other New York Universities will be seriously hampered unless conditions in Europe soon become more favorable.

AGAIN MAKES DENIAL OF NAVAL BATTLE

British Admiralty Says There is no Truth in Story Published by Daily Mail Today.

NEWSPAPER IS DENOUNCED

(By United Press.)

London, Aug. 8.—In the house of commons this afternoon, Home Secretary McKenna, after emphatically denying the report printed by the Daily Mail that a naval engagement had taken place denounces the publication of "such false reports." He declared that the government will not withhold the news when the fleets actually fight, but said that premature reports of victory worked incalculable damage to the British cause.

The admiralty today again denied that a naval battle had taken place off the Dutch coast after the publication by the Daily Mail that 19 German warships had been sunk by the British fleet and the remainder of the kaiser's fleet had been routed and was being pursued.

Relatives of Miss Henrietta Coleman, who it with a party touring Europe, received a letter from her this morning that was mailed in Venice July 21. Miss Coleman did not mention the war and stated that they were having a fine time. From Venice the party expected to proceed into Switzerland. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bristor of Indianapolis delightfully surprised Mrs. Bristor's parents, Dr and Mrs. E. I. Wooden, last night at the Beer hotel with a three-course six o'clock dinner, the occasion being their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The table decorations consisted of silver candlesticks, place cards laid in silver and flowers. The colors were pink and green. Mr. and Mrs. Bristor were believed to be on their way to Mackinac for a summer outing and for that reason the surprise was all the more enjoyable. Several beautiful silver gifts were received by Dr. and Mrs. Wooden. Dr. Wooden was called to the Beer hotel on the pretext that someone was ill. Other guests besides Mr. and Mrs. Bristor and Dr. and Mrs. Wooden were Mrs. P. J. Flanady and daughter Irma and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Warner of Indianapolis and Miss Katherine Wooden of this city.

BELGIANS, REINFORCED. STILL HOLD LIEGE TODAY

highly valuable service to the French army which for some days has been coming to our assistance at top speed. French troops occupy much Belgian territory now and are supporting the Belgian defenders.

"The German prisoners of war are mostly cavalymen. They display no enthusiasm for the war. Despite the fact that when the attack was renewed today, three entire German army corps were engaged they are unable to make any impression on the Liege forts which still hold out and which are still well supplied with ammunition. Belgian reinforcements have been sent to Liege."

Enraged when his demand for a twenty four armistice to "collect the wounded and bury the dead" was refused, General Von Emmich, the German commander, today ordered his entire army against Liege today. The seventh, ninth and tenth corps are engaged and the battle line embraces the entire chain of the Liege fortifications.

The slaughter is terrible as the Belgian fire is deadly. The Germans are advancing over open spaces that have been accurately mapped and the range determined by the Belgians. German field artillery, mortars and siege guns are in action pouring thousands of exploding shells into the Belgian fortresses.

General Goudneur declared that the request for an armistice was intended only to permit the Germans to hurry up two additional army corps that were pressing forward from Cologne. The Germans have been outwitted at every point to date. The Belgians have apparently fallen back defeated and, whenever the Germans have rushed forward, they have been trapped. This ruse has worked several times. In addition seven regiments of German cavalry who have managed to cross the Meuse were surprised by Belgians and literally cut to pieces. Those not killed or wounded were forced to surrender.

The governor of Liege reported to the war offices today that up to the present, the entire Belgian losses totaled only 8,000 men in killed and wounded, as against 30,000 to the Germans.

The Germans are reported as continuing their advance en masse despite the heavy losses already sustained. It is believed here that they desire to overwhelm the defending Belgian forces by sheer weight of numbers. It is understood the main advance is being led by portions of the Seventh army corps which is commanded by General Von Ditmaler and by the flower of General Von Emmich's Tenth corps with the ninth corps, that has already borne the brunt of the fighting and suffered very heavy losses held in reserve.

That the Germans intend to capture Liege is indicated by the reports that further reinforcements are being brought up. In addition other German armies are moving to reinforce the army that invaded Luxembourg.

The French forces are moving through Belgium as rapidly as possible and it is reported at the war office that the advance guard of 200,000 Frenchmen have already effected a junction with the Belgian army at a point not made public. It is known that French and German skirmishers have been in contact at Narrehan and this is believed here to be the prelude to serious fighting there.

The reports received here indicate that in today's fighting the Germans are continuing their display of wonderful bravery. In the face of withering fire from the fort guns, they have been steadily pushing their lines forward and although repulsed in general charges have been able to bring their artillery much closer to the Belgians forts.

Returning from the front today, 9th regiment of the army defending Liege, paraded through the streets of Antwerp, carrying German helmets upon their bayonets. With their tokens of victory, the regiment aroused the people of Antwerp to a frenzy of patriotic enthusiasm.

Vast throngs cheered and wept as the regiment marched through the city. Every man carried a German helmet perched high on his bayonet as a trophy of the fight.

AIR FIGHTS MAY DECIDE THE WAR

Experts Believe They Will be a Big Factor in European Conflict Now Being Waged

MARK PROGRESS IN WARFARE

They Say Air Crafts Will Have More Fighting Value Than Water Vessels Due to Mobility

New York, August 8.—Aeronautical experts are reckoning the aircraft strength of the nations expected to fly at one another's throats in European war, knowing the vital part flying machines will play in a great war.

The experts say they probably will be a deciding factor. They will be used for scouting and for general warfare. Only three of the nations involved, however, have advanced in aeronautics sufficiently to be reckoned with in aerial warfare. They are France, Germany and England. For the last year these nations have been putting armor on their aeroplanes and equipping them with aerial guns for the fighting of battles.

France has the greatest number of aeroplanes, 1,200. Germany and Russia come next. Whether Russia has 600 or 800 of them is not known, for the military authorities there have tried their best to shroud military aeronautics in mystery.

In dirigibles Germany is supreme. She has the largest number of them.

"It is now the general opinion," said Henry Woodhouse, editor of Flying, and a prominent member of the Aero Club of America, "that an airship has more actual fighting value than a battle ship, its ability to operate at night and its excess of speed over the fastest battle ship being considered factors unequalled in value by the best features of battle ships."

"Adding the fact that the best airships can be built, housed and operated for a year at a fraction of the cost of a battleship, it is not surprising that Germany's aeronautical program involves the expenditure of $35,000,000, and England, France, Italy and Russia are constantly adding to their airship fleet. The problem of defending airships from aeroplanes, which perplexed the authorities up to a year ago, is being solved by making the aeroplanes auxiliaries of airships, to defend them from attacking aeroplanes, and the airships are being equipped with machine guns to fire at aeroplanes at long range."

Here is what Admiral Sir Percy Scott of the British Navy has said: "Submarines and aeroplanes have entirely revolutionized naval warfare. No fleet can hide itself from the aeroplane's eye, and the submarines can deliver a deadly attack even in broad daylight. Under these circumstances I can see no use for battle-ships and very little chance of much employment for fast cruisers. What we require is an enormous fleet of submarines and aeroplanes and a few fast cruisers."

Secretary of war Lindley M. Garrison says: "The records achieved and the progress made by heavier-than-air machines and power driven lighter-than-air vehicles have demonstrated beyond operation. Air power will be one of the dominant factors controlling the policies of the great powers in the future, as sea power has been in the past."

"The absence or presence of an efficient air force will be a deciding element in hostile operations, and the commander who is without such a force will be greatly hampered from the outset of operations. Information as to the location and movements of the enemy is absolutely essential to any commander, and such information has been usually obtained by the active use of cavalry in contact with the enemy or by secret service within his lines. An efficient air force will not only supplement, but, anticipate the reconnaissance work of the cavalry, and can penetrate miles beyond the line of contact, provided, it is not opposed by similar or better aircraft of the enemy."

"Leading military authorities have agreed that the functions of these new war engines are fourfold—for reconnaissance, both strategical and tactical; for the prevention of reconnaissance on the part of an enemy, for communication purposes and for destructive action against an enemy.

"While the United States was the first nation to recognize the possibilities of the aeroplane in war and to evolve the first type for military purposes, the exigencies of the great powers of Europe have led them to develop their aerial fleets to a much greater extent has been done in our country."

CZECH SOLDIERS ARE SHOT

Attempt Mutiny and Austrian Officers Kill Them

(By United Press.)

Paris, Aug. 8.—Many Czech soldiers were lined up and shot by Austrians because they refused to go to the front, it was officially announced at the war office here today. ## Good Roads and Bad

George Fitch, who can be humorous in spite of the fact that he lives in Peoria, considers the road question in Collier's this week and attributes much of the greatness of Illinois to bad roads, a paradox which would seem, but hear him:

"Illinois is making violent effort to improve its roads. After trying every other known method it now proposes to roof them over with concrete, thus allowing traffic to ride over them instead of through them.

"This is a peculiarly ungrateful proceeding on the part of Illinois because she owes her early greatness to her famous mucilaginous mud highways. A century ago the tide of emigration set westward from Ohio and points east. It got as far as Illinois and then stopped—because it couldn't get any farther. Thousands of hardy pioneers tugged, dragged, pried and otherwise coerced their moving-wagons into the bosom of Illinois—the soft, yielding, gluey, gurgly bosom—then they gave up in despair and raised a crop. That settled it. When they found how useful the Illinois mud was except for road-making purposes they stayed on and became rich and prosperous.

"Lincoln's folks struggled knee deep through Illinois as far as Decatur and then settled down to wait for good roads. While waiting Lincoln grew up and became president. If Illinois roads had been navigable in the twenties of the last century, Lincoln might have been given to the nation by Iowa or Missouri—but the soil held on to him with such desperate energy that he never got west of Springfield.

"However, not even history and early service can save the rare old three-dimension Illinois gumbo roads. The state desires thoroughfares which will not climb affectionately into the foundered automobile and creep into the watch pocket of the traveler. More Americans are traveling by automobile now than ever journeyed by stagecoach in the brave old days when a city on a good post road became a metropolis because of the traffic which passed through it, and the state which meets these travelers at its borders with a chuck hole and a team of horses is not wise."

Audiences Are Small

Writing from Chicago, a special political correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer (Dem) says:

"Albert J. Beveridge made a brief tour of Illinois presumably in the interests of the Bull Moose party, but more particularly for the purpose of attacking the candidacies of Joseph G. Cannon, William McKinley, and W. A. Rodenberg, who are seeking to go back to Congress. It may have been the hot weather, or some other cause, but the talented Indian did not draw well, and his hearers were not enthusiastic. Returning to Indianapolis, however, Beveridge gave out an interview in which he said he was highly enthusiastic over the prospects in Illinois, and believed Raymond Robins, the Bull Moose candidate for the United States Senate, would be elected. This may be so, but it is news to Illinois."

GREAT WAR WILL
SETTLE FACTOR

Power of Submarine, as Well as Unknown, is Much Dreaded by all Commanders

NEVER HAVE BEEN TESTED

Psychological Effect of Knowledge That Enemy Has Them in Use Will be Factor

New York, Aug. 8. — "Submarines will be the unknown quantity in the next naval conflict," said a prominent naval tactician. "In the more recent naval battles, notably those of the Spanish-American and the Russo-Japanese wars, all of the sea fighting was a straight case of 'knock down and drag out.' The battleships ment and brought side to side. The Spanish fleet made a running fight, but the American battleships were fast enough to get practically alongside, and it became a test of gunnery, men and armor. The battles of the Russo-Japanese war were similar—the combatants got together and fought it out, and the best men and guns won. In none of these conflicts did submarines play any part.

"In the naval battles of the near future—and now that the war cloud bids fair to break over Europe, I might say of the present—the submarine is either going to be the deadliest weapon or the greatest failure in the armament of nations.

"Now, before the acid test—before their actual performance in battle—the submarines are a dreaded unknown force. The psychological effect of the knowledge that the enemy is likely to use submarines will be a vital factor in all attacks by water or in naval engagements. From the captain or commodore, with the responsibility of $10,000,000 worth of dreadnought and the lives of 1,200 men on his shoulders, down to the stokers, the fear that annihilation may come at any moment from the very depths of the ocean will be a disquieting thought.

"Unlike the dirigible or aeroplane, the submarine is invisible. Its periscope or 'eye' is so minute an object and is above the water so seldom that the detection and forestalling of a submarine attack is practically impossible. Its night attacks, such as may take place when harbors are blockaded, a fleet must keep moving perpetually, and then it is not safe. The submarine, being invisible, can lie in the track of the battleships, and deal its death blow as they pass. The strongest searchlights can not pick submarines up, except when they are running on the surface, and then it is no easy thing to do.

"It was thought that the Ulivi rays would put the submarines out of business, but now that they have turned out to be a 'fake' the battleships have no defense. By exploding the torpedoes before they left the submarine the Ulivi rays would have made the submarine corps a 'suicide corps.'

"That the submarines are as deadly to themselves as to the enemy is the view accepted by those who serve on them. Leaving out all accidents, it is safe to predict that the shock of the submarine's torpedo exploding against the side of a dreadnought will be sufficient to cave in the sides of the submarine and cause its loss and the death of its crew. A recent test in Portsmouth, England, showed that thirty pounds of gun-cotton exploded under water had sufficient force to destroy a submarine within a radius of one hundred feet.

"All defense against submarines is based on a knowledge of their position, either exact or superficial. The Orling-Armstrong torpedo, as used by the British navy, can be controlled and exploded by wireless. One plan is to direct a number of torpedoes of this type to a spot where submarine is suspected and explode them when they are near the spot. This is the same idea as the man who takes a ten-bore gun and goes after deer with buckshot.

Ninety per cent of his shot miss, but the others do the work.

"It is generally accepted that a submarine detected is a submarine destroyed, and several ingenious plans have been evolved to do away with it. In Portsmouth, a short time ago, extensive experiments were made with 'spar torpedoes.' These are explosives on the end of a long spar, and are carried over the bow of a thirty-knot destroyer. The tests were made with a large barrel, to which was fixed a periscope. The barrel was sunk so that just the 'eye' would show as the waves washed over it. A destroyer, the Starfish, was sent after it, and on the first trial blew the barrel to atoms.

"Drag nets have been tried with success. Destroyers with these great nets between them have been able to catch the submarines, but in several of the tests the destroyers have been technically destroyed by a torpedo from the submarine. Of course the submarine would have been destroyed itself, but the naval advantage lay with the submarine, the percentage of loss in men and money being about 100 to 1.

"Taking all things into consideration, it is safe to say that there is no defense against the submarine unless it is detected, and now that it can remain under water from twenty to twenty-four hours and have a cruising radius of more than thirty miles, it will be very hard to discover.

"England has by far the greatest number of submarines and it is conceded that they are more highly developed than those of the other nations. Her submarine corps has had much experience and is most efficient. There are now about seventy-five submarines ready for active service in the British navy. Many of these can be carried on the deck of a dreadnought and slipped into the water just before a battle or an attack on a blockading fleet. Germany has twenty-seven submarines, France fifty-five, Russia fourteen, Austria six, and the other European nations have about thirty between them.

"Naval officers have differed in opinion regarding the destructive power and military of the submarines, but Sir Percy Scott, the well-known British naval authority, thinks very highly of them. He said recently that submarines and torpedo boats would decide the naval battles of the near future, and backed his contention with strong proofs. England, if what he says is correct, will have a tremendous advantage over its adversaries, owing to the great number and high efficiency of her submarines."

THIS WOMAN'S SICKNESS

Quickly Yielded To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Baltimore, Md. — "I am more than glad to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I suffered dreadful pains and was very irregular. I became alarmed and sent for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it regularly until I was without a cramp or pain and felt like another person, and it has now been six months since I took any medicine at all. I hope my little note will assist you in helping other women. I now feel perfectly well and in the best of health." — Mrs. AUGUST W. KONDNER, 1632 Hollins Street, Baltimore, Md.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

and told me that last kiln had fallen down.

"But even then, without a cent of money left, I was not discouraged. I took my watch to Montgomery and pawned it. When I returned I had nine dollars. With that we started another kiln. It worked and today we have 97 large buildings, all the work of our own students. During our last brick making period we made something like three million bricks."

Mr. Washington's address was confined to his work with the negro race and his accomplishments with the school for colored people at Tuskegee, Ala. He recalled that a few years ago newspapers and some of the higher critics predicted that the race problem had been solved when 600 negroes sailed back to their native land. But Mr. Washington said that same morning before breakfast 600 negroes had been born. The critics did not take that into consideration. He asserted the problems had to be faced and settled here.

He ridiculed the idea of segregation. He said it would be absurd to build a wall to confine the negroes to a given territory and that it would take more than five walls to keep the white men out. He declared his race had some advantages as well as disadvantages. He recalled that history shows it was the only race that ever came to America on urgent invitation. He remembered that our forefathers landed here against the wishes of the "leading citizens" of North America. He said the negro was not only invited here, but that his transportation was paid. He asserted it would be ungracious on the part of the negro not to remain.

"I believe," he said "there is enough Christianity and forbearance here and we are all Christians enough for each race to live out its destiny side by side."

Mr. Washington was born in 1858 or '59 in Virginia. He is not sure about the exact time or place, but he said he was sure he was born. After the war, he said, the question of the future came to his mother as to every other negro just set free, and they moved to the coal mining district of West Virginia and he was hired out as a helper in the coal mines. One day he heard two negro miners telling of a negro school at Hampton and a desire at once arose in his breast to go there. He started on foot, walking a distance of 500 miles. He told of his entrance examination, which consisted of sweeping a room. He passed it successfully and gained his first education.

He taught school in West Virginia for a time and then went to the black belt of Alabama, where, in some countries, negroes outnumber the whites as high as ten to one. There, he asserted, the race problem was most serious. He said when he first started his work, his aims were very selfish, but that he has nothing now but one ambition to serve the best interest of all the people of the south.

"There is no form of slavery," he continued with great emphasis, "so great as that which sets one race against another. It is that racial hatred that the people across the water are paying the price for now."

Mr. Washington established the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute in 1881, with one teacher and thirty students. The students multiplied until an old cabin, the first home of the Institute, grew too small and an old hen house had to be used in addition. During regular sessions the student body numbers over 1,600, who come from 36 different states and among whom 17 foreign countries or colonies are represented. There are 197 instructors. The trustees own and control 3,000 acres of land and 97 buildings have been erected through the aid of the students. The estimated value of the holdings of the Institute is $1,500,000 and there is not a mortgage on it. The annual cost of administration is $275,000. He declared that lands and dollars meant nothing in his achievement because they were not the ends attained, but the means to an end.

"Since there are 10,000,000 negroes in the United States," he continued, "9,000,000 of whom live in the south and 85 per cent of whom live off the soil, we said we would try to help this class. We are trying to brush aside artificiality and get down to bed rock. We are trying to face the facts insofar as our race is concerned. We have kept in mind we were working with a young race that has to pass through the same silly period as the boy. You have to be patient with the boy. Lots of people have overlooked the fact that the negro race has to pass through the same period. You used to say, when a negro who had been educated got a cane and a big cigar, 'that is what education does for the negro.' But with few exceptions the educated negroes of the south have learned that education should be signified by humility."

"At Tuskegee we are not teaching agriculture. I have heard you people up here talk considerable about this thing. We have just plain farming. Neither do we teach any household art or domestic science. We have just a plain cooking course. This domestic science and household art may be all right, but some times the household art and the cooking gets mixed up on the table and then there is trouble."

He told of the objections he met with when he first started Tuskegee. Negroes thought it foolish to teach their children how to work when they had been worked all their life. They believed work shouldn't ever be mentioned. But Mr. Washington showed them the difference between working and being worked. Being worked, he said, meant slavery, and working meant freedom. Through the efforts of Tuskegee, he asserted, much of the prejudice of the southern negro against work has been broken down.

He told of the reformation in the methods of education at Tuskegee. He said they stood a few of those "Beyond-Italy-Lies-the-Alps" commencements and then they called a halt. Now they work with things as they are. They do not acquire all of their knowledge from texts, without consideration of the things about them. Now the commencement exercises consist of demonstrations in cooking by the girls and talks, with the proofs, by the boys. There are no talks, he said, on "The Psychology of Turnips." He said the work of the Institute would accomplish nothing unless its knowledge were spread broadcast. Educated negroes are being sent out continually.

Mr. Washington gave some astounding figures. In the south, the negroes own 20,000,000 acres of land, a body as large as the New England states, excluding Maine. They own 700,000 houses and pay taxes on $700,000,000 worth of property. This means of course, that it's value is much greater than that. They own 10,000 dry goods stores, 400 drug stores and own or control 60 banks. When they were freed only three per cent. could read or write, but now 69 per cent. can. This is higher than in many foreign countries. He recalled congress had never been compelled to appropriate money to keep the negro, where as congress pays out $12,000,000 annually to support 400,000 Indians. He recalled that the negro seldom begs. Furthermore, he said, the negro adapts himself more quickly to American ways than any foreigner. He dresses the same way, eats the same food, has the same religion and is an American citizen first, last and all the time.

Prizes in the flower growing contest conducted by the Rushville Civic Improvement and Social Service association were awarded late Thursday afternoon at the Coliseum. There were fifty-one entries and two prizes for each of the four sections of the city in each class. The first prize was 50 cents and the second prize was 25 cents. The prizes totaled $16.75. There were eight varieties of which prizes were given, but in some instances prizes were not awarded because there were no entries in the class. Mrs. R. G. Budd, Mrs. R. A. Innis and Mrs. Ed Crosby were the judges.

HEAVY HITTING FEATURES GAME

A. B. C.'s Have Little Trouble Defeating Leland Giants of Chicago 15 to 10.

MANY LONG HITS WERE MADE

The A. B. C.'s defeated the Leland Giants of Chicago yesterday at the South Main street park by the score of 15 to 10. The game was witnessed by a large crowd of fans and the colored teams afforded much amusement. The game itself did not amount to much and was a heavy hitting affair. Two home runs in the first inning and several tripples, scattered throughout the nine inning shows that it was a free hitting game.

"String Bean" William for the A. B. C.'s was hit hard but the hits did not come when they were needed. Score by innings:

Second M. E. Church.

DELIVERS BRIEF ADDRESS

Following the lecture last night at the chautauqua Booker T. Washington was entertained at the Second M. E. church. A fried chicken dinner was served and the local colored people spared no pains in making the event a notable one. Twenty-four chickens were used in the feast.

A large crowd was in attendance including several visitors from surrounding cities. Prof. J. H. Williams, of Washington, Ind., former teacher in the Washington school here was present and introduced Mr. Washington. In a brief address Mr. Washington gave some advice to his people here and told of his work in the south. The noted colored speaker left this morning for Huntington where he delivers an address to-night.

Mrs. George Smalley and Mrs. Ollie Newhouse of this city left today to attend the meeting of a Baptist association in Indianapolis.

METEOR DISPLAY SUNDAY

Strange Things Booked to Happen
Tomorrow Night

(By United Press.)

Washington, Aug. 8.—There won't be a bit of use going up in the air or suddenly taking the pledge if you see strange things happening in the sky tomorrow night. Of course, if tomorrow happens to be cloudy, it's all off. But if the night should be clear, expect most anything. Tomorrow night, according to officials of the Naval Observatory is the one night in the year that thousands of mysterious little meteors and shooting stars which seem to emerge from the constellation Perseus, make their appearance. Perseus hangs low over the eastern sky and tomorrow, if he acts according to his contract, will send innumerable glowing streaks and miniature comets across the sky every few minutes. These streaks leave in their trail particles which pass continually around the sun.

Shelbyville Chautauqua Directors
Turn Down Independent Idea

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Shelbyville chautauqua association yesterday afternoon the proposed plan for an independent circuit was rejected and that association signed a contract for another year with the circuit they are now on. A representative of the circuit chautauqua was present and presented a proposition that the board did not believe it could afford to turn down and signed for another year. The independent idea was looked upon favorably but the Shelbyville people did not believe they were ready for the change.

ONE FROM SARGENT, INDIANA

Business Man Writes That he Was

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 8.—Indications continue to pile up that the recent conference at Republican state headquarters between State Chairman Will H. Hays and 125 former Progressive leaders is to have highly important bearing on the political situation in the state this year. Letters continue to pour into Republican state headquarters from former Progressives in every section of the state expressing their approval of the action taken at the conference and expressing the hope that the active organization work in behalf of the Republican party by former Progressives will be extended to every precinct in the state.

The following letter from a business man of Sargent, Indiana, who was an active Progressive worker in 1912, is typical of the hundreds of messages that have been received at Republican headquarters. F. M. Sargent, head of F. M. Sargent & Co., writes as follows:

"Your invitation to attend a conference of former Progressives at Indianapolis Thursday, July 30 was received in due time, but owing to previous arrangements I could not be there. We had lots of Progressives in this part of the country two years ago but they are very scarce now. Everything looks very favorable for the success of the Republican party this fall. I think the local Progressive organization is doing all they can for the Democratic party. Anytime I can be of assistance in any way, I am ready to do what I can."

PART OF ARMY MOBILIZED

(By United Press.)

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 8.—Parliament today adopted a resolution announcing it to be Portugal's intention to stand by England in the present war. Whether that support is to take the form of openly declaring war on Germany or whether it will be to throw Portuguese ports open to British warships for their use is still to be determined.

The premier afterward introduced a resolution tendering the support of Portugal to England with condition. The resolution was responsible for a demonstration from every section of the chamber in honor of England and France.

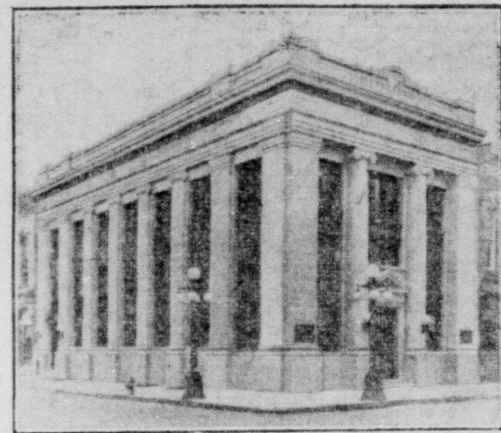

The war office has ordered the mobilization of three divisions of the army.

BELGIANS, REINFORCED, STILL HOLDING LIEGE

HEAVY GUNS CONTINUE FIRE

Kaiser's Men are Finally Compelled to Fall Back on Main Column Near the River

FRENCH REINFORCEMENTS

Flying Cavalry Arrives Today and Others are Constantly Coming to Aid of Belgians

AN ARMISTICE IS REFUSED

Enraged by This, German Commander Orders Entire Army of Three Corps Against Liege

(By United Press.)

Brussels, August 8.—Belgian armistices successful in the vicinity of Liege. King Albert in personal command of the entire Belgian cavalry force today attacked the German flank, heading them between the advancing Belgian troops and the forts. At the same time the Liege forts continued their bombardment of the German position and the Germans were finally compelled to give way and retire on the main column near the river.

Despite the fact that the entire German army corps are engaged, they have been unable to penetrate the Belgian lines which have now been reinforced by a flying French cavalry column. French reinforcements are constantly arriving and the Belgian officials declare they can now hold the Liege forts indefinitely.

It is stated here that the German troops are in distress because their supply train has not come up. Belgian cavalry are cutting their communications and sweeping around them. The railroads have also been destroyed, and while the Germans are trying to restore it, they have been unable to do so up to the present. Reports that the Belgians were running out of ammunition received promptly and positive denial from officials here. They say the forces have enough ammunition to last them at least another month while there are plenty of reserve supplies which can be brought up from the supply depot.

The war office in a statement today reviewing the situation to date, declares that despite the fact that 125,000 Germans have been engaged they have been unable to make any impression on the Liege defense. The statement then says:

"For many days our little army with tenacity and courage rendered

The crown prince, heading the main division of the Serbian army, today assumed the offensive directing a determined attack upon the Austrian army.

SAY AUSTRIA WILL NOT HELP GERMANY

This is Sensational Assertion Today of Italian Officials, Giving New Angle to War

SHE REFUSES TO AID SHIPS

(By United Press.)

Rome, August 8.—The sensational declaration was made by Italian officials here today that Austria has declined to aid Germany against England. They declare that the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, expelled from Messina harbor yesterday, wireless the Austrian fleet to aid against the waiting British fleet and that the Austrian fleet returned with a flat refusal, declaring war had not yet been declared between Austria and England.

As a result of the refusal the German cruisers are in a desperate position. A combined French and English fleet is between them and safety.

GERMANY STARTS INVADING RUSSIA

Kaiser's Army of 40,000 Men, Supported by Warships, Marches on Capital of Finland

RUSSIAN TROOPS FALL BACK

(By United Press.)

Copenhagen, Aug. 8.—The real invasion of Russia by Germany is in progress. Reports received here today say that a German invading army of 10,000 men, supported by warships, have been landed at Skeneas and are now marching on Helsingfors, the capital of Finland. The Germans have been opposed by Russian troops, but they are persisting in their advance and it is expected that Helsingfors will be taken. This movement is preliminary to a general invasion of Russia by Germany. From Helsingfors to St. Petersburg there is a direct line of railway along which it is expected the Germans will advance.

BRITISH SEND TROOPS ACROSS

Twenty-Two Thousand Men Started Across Channel Today and 100,000 More Will Follow.

TRANSPORTS IN WAITING

Details of Expedition Are Withheld. Line of Warships Protect Troops Vessels.

(By United Press.)

London, August 8.—England's army is nearly ready to strike. British troops are being rushed across the channel to France and Belgium. The German forces will find them waiting when the Kaiser's army reaches Namur. The flower of the British army was sent across in transports today, numbering 22,000. One hundred thousand more men probably will be sent, for transports for that number are waiting to carry them.

Details of the expedition are withheld. It is known that a small fleet guarded the transports and that the British warships are stretched out in a line across the channel to protect the transports.

The whereabouts of the main British fleet is still an impenetrable mystery. While rumors of a battle are circulated, the home secretary in the house of commons this afternoon explicitly denied that there had been a naval engagement. He insisted that the spreading of false news would have an evil effect on the British people.

FRENCH ARMY IS INVADING GERMANY

Attacks Kaiser's Stronghold at Mulhausen After Taking Altkirche in Violent Engagement

BIG GERMAN ARMY OPPOSES

(By United Press.)

Paris, August 8.—The French invading army was this afternoon attacking the fortifications that guard the German stronghold at Mulhausen sixty-one miles south of Strassburg. Following a victory over the Germans at Altkirche earlier today the French column advanced toward Mulhausen. This town is heavily fortified and the French advance is opposed by a large German army.

Altkirche is in German territory about twenty miles southwest of Reckfort. The German position there was carried by storm after a violent engagement in which both sides suffered. This announcement means that a French invasion of Germany is in progress. The German position is in Alsace on the line of German fortifications extending from Colmar, Germany, to Vase on the Swiss border.

INSPECTORS NAMED TODAY

County Commissioners Affirm Recommendations of S. M. Trabue, Democratic Chairman

FOR REGISTRATION OCT. 5

Inspectors Appoint Clerks Who are Suggested by Chairmen of Two Highest Parties

At a meeting of the county commissioners this morning inspectors for the October registration were appointed. From all indications there will be but the one registration as it is necessary to petition eighty days before the election in November before a registration can be held in September. The October registration will be held on Monday, October 5, or twenty-nine days before the election.

The commissioners, as required by law, appoint one inspector for each precinct. The names were suggested by Samuel L. Trabue, Democratic county chairman, and affirmed by the board. According to the law the inspectors will appoint the clerks. The names of the clerks are suggested to the inspectors by the county chairmen of the two political parties carrying the highest vote in the county at the last general election. In this county the two clerks for every precinct will be Democrats and Republicans as these two parties were the highest at the last election.

Each party is entitled to a watcher at the registration. The Democratic chairman took care of the old guard of the party in making his selections. Especially is this true in Rushville township, where such men as B. A. Black, John Kelley, Frank Brown, and J. Milt Stiers have long had a controlling interest in the party. The following is the list of inspectors:

- Ripley—No. 1—Peter J. Satter; No. 2—Charles Newlin; No. 3—Riley Ruby.
- Posey—No. 1—John McCoy; No. 2—John P. Downey.
- Walker—No. 1—John W. Mull; No. 2—George Whisman.
- Orange—No. 1—Wilbur C. Anderson; No. 2—Samuel T. Overleser; No. 3—A. H. Rogers.
- Rushville—No. 1—Russell Behant; No. 2—Will S. Mendith; No. 3—R. G. Budd; No. 4—B. A. Black; No. 5—John F. Cross; No. 6—Frank Brown; No. 7—John Kelley; No. 8—Jesse Stevens; No. 9—J. Milt Stiers; No. 10—John C. Wallace.
- Jackson—No. 1—Frank Sample; No. 2—Omer Abernathy; No. 3—Anson Bowen.
- Washington—No. 1—Franklin D. Miles; No. 2—Wilson T. Dobbins; No. 3—Edwan Vickery; No. 4—Edward Dolan.

Just as the chautauqua officials were thinking of dividing the gate receipts with the weather man for his kindly treatment of them this week, the water gates were opened and the city was flooded about six o'clock last night. It rained more or less, mostly more, during the evening, and lightning kept the heaven aglow a good part of the time.

But even under these circumstances no seats in the immense Coliseum were available when Booker T. Washington, most famous man of the negro race, arose to speak. A large crowd was out in the afternoon to hear Lincoln McConnell and many remained for the evening program. This accounted, in a measure, for the large crowd at night. If the weather had been favorable it is believed the crowd would have been much larger.

The chautauqua will close Sunday with two lectures by Bishop Shepard and the prelude and a postlude at night by the Oxford, a mixed quartet of more than usual merit which came today to stay the remainder of the chautauqua. They gave the program this afternoon and tonight will sing the "Mikado," a Japanese light opera by Gilbert and Sullivan.

A large crowd was out this afternoon to hear Col. Bob Seeds, whose lecture abounded in sharp wit and humor, with a sprinkling of homely sayings and good advice that comes from a life of varied interests. He pleased as well as any lecturer who has been here.

"I wouldn't change places with the whitest man in the world," said Booker T. Washington last night. "I am thankful that I am a black man. Some time people ask me if I ever get discouraged. Of course I never do when I think of the work there is to do for my race. I am always reminded when people ask me that question, of my first experience at Tuskegee Institute.

"After the school had been started, we had to have more buildings. I told the students we would have to build them ourselves. So we had to make the brick. I had never made any bricks, but I thought I could. We made forty thousand brick and the kiln fell down when about half built. The same thing happened to the second and third trials, and each time we had made more brick. I thought the end was near when about three o'clock one morning a boy knocked at my door one morning

CAUSES HAVOC IN THIS COUNTY

Lightning Strikes Two Barns, Causing Them to Burn, and Damages Two Houses

ANNA HUDDLESON SCHOCKED

Heaviest Loss Suffered by Bert Dalrymple Southeast of Carthage—Just Buggy Saved

Considerable damage resulted from lightning last night in the storm that passed over Rush county. The electrical display was very brilliant and from all parts of the county come the reports of a fine rain. It did not rain as hard in this city as in other parts of the county. The lightning here was very much in evidence and a part of the electric light plant was put out of commission. Lightning ran in the plant and burnt out the fuse controlling the small street lights. Most of the city was in darkness.

The greatest loss from fire was sustained by Bert Dalrymple, living southwest of Carthage. A large barn on his farm was struck by lightning and burned. The only thing saved was a buggy. Mr. Dalrymple lost two horses, a number of wagons, implements, forty tons of hay and two hundred bushels of corn. He estimates his loss at $2,500, which is partially insured in the farmers' company.

A peculiar coincidence is that the home of Mrs. Anna Huddleson, mother-in-law of Mr. Dalrymple, in Danreith, was struck by lightning about the same time. Mrs. Huddleson was severely shocked but the house did not burn. She was in a serious condition for some time.

A barn on the E. A. Frazee farm, near Orange was also destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $600, with some insurance, but not enough to cover the loss. One cow perished in the flames. The mow was full of hay and Mr. Frazee lost some farming implements. B. A. Snoddy lives on the Frazee farm.

A small barn belonging to Fred Bruzenohl, at the south edge of Glenwood, was struck and burned. The barn was practically new and contained some grain. The horses were saved. Practically the entire population of Glenwood turned out to fight the fire and it was through the hardest kind of work that the house was saved.

The home of Lester Henry in Mays was struck but did not catch fire. The roof was considerably damaged.

—Mrs. Nathan Horr and Mrs. Thomas Kirk have returned from a several days visit with relatives in Indianapolis. They accompanied their brother Jerry Henry that far, as he went to Martinville to take treatment for rheumatism.

BRINGS JOY TO YOUNG AMERICA

European War Threatens to Postpone Opening of Schools Throughout Country

ARE MANY TEACHERS ABSENT

Hundreds Marooned in Countries Engaged in World War May Not Get Home for Some Time

(By United Press.)
New York, Aug. 8.—(Causing the greatest consternation among educational authorities, but great joy to Young America, the European war threatens to cause a postponement of the opening of the schools throughout the country.

Advices received here today indicate that hundreds of American school teachers are marooned in France, Germany, England and other European countries now in a state of war. Those in Germany have but small chance of getting out, possibly for months. It is practically certain that so long as Germany is engaged in war they will not be able to leave except at the greatest risk.

Colleges also report that scores of professors are among the Americans marooned on the continent. Columbia and other New York Universities will be seriously hampered unless conditions in Europe soon become more favorable.

137 FROM PHILADELPHIA

AGAIN MAKES DENIAL OF NAVAL BATTLE

British Admiralty Says There is no Truth in Story Published by Daily Mail Today.

NEWSPAPER IS DENOUNCED

(By United Press.)
London, Aug. 8.—In the house of commons this afternoon, Home Secretary McKenna, after emphatically denying the report printed by the Daily Mail that a naval engagement had taken place denounces the publication of "such false reports." He declared that the government will not withhold the news when the fleets actually fight, but said that premature reports of victory worked incalculable damage to the British cause.

The admiralty today again denied that a naval battle had taken place off the Dutch coast after the publication by the Daily Mail that 19 German warships had been sunk by the British fleet and the remainder of the Kaiser's fleet had been routed and was being pursued.

G. L. REEVES IS IN PARIS

According to the Columbus Republican, G. L. Reeves and son Robert, of Columbus, who are widely related in this country, have cabled that they are safe and comfortable in Paris, but the date of their sailing is uncertain. Mr. Reeves had previously cabled that he and his son would sail from Paris August 13, but it is presumed now that the date of their departure has been changed and that they will be unable to get out of the French capital at that time.

Relatives of Miss Henrietta Coleman, who is with a party touring Europe, received a letter from her this morning that was mailed in Venice July 21. Miss Coleman did not mention the war and stated that they were having a fine time. From Venice the party expected to proceed into Switzerland. Miss Helen Scott, and Miss Genevieve Brown are in the party with Miss Coleman.

THAT SUNDAY RUSH

A Talk to Mrs. Housewife of Rushville.

When that visitor is here from out-of-town you hurry home from church on Sunday morning to make sure the big dinner is going to be just right. You "pitch in" yourself and when everything is ready you're too tired and hot to enjoy the meal. When the meal is over there comes the cleaning up before that afternoon drive and for the rest of the day you feel unfit for your role of entertaining hostess.

There's only one way to overcome that worry and hurry, to prevent "that tired feeling" before your day of rest is half through. Your husband will agree on that point when you suggest taking Mr. and Mrs. Out-of-Town to a Sunday dinner at the

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bristor of Indianapolis delightfully surprised Mrs. Bristor's parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. I. Wooden, last night at the Beer hotel with a three-course six o'clock dinner, the occasion being their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The table decorations consisted of silver candlesticks, place cards laid in silver and flowers. The colors were pink and green. Mr. and Mrs. Bristor were believed to be on their way to Mackinac for a summer outing and for that reason the surprise was all the more enjoyable. Several beautiful silver gifts were received by Dr. and Mrs. Wooden. Dr. Wooden was called to the Beer hotel on the pretext that someone was ill. Other guests besides Mr. and Mrs. Bristor and Dr. and Mrs. Wooden were Mrs. P. J. Flanady and daughter Irma and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Warner of Indianapolis and Miss Katherine Wooden of this city.

highly valuable service to the French army which for some days has been coming to our assistance at top speed. French troops occupy much Belgian territory now and are supporting the Belgian defenders.

"The German prisoners of war are mostly cavalrymen. They display no enthusiasm for the war. Despite the fact that when the attack was renewed today, three entire German army corps were engaged they are unable to make any impression on the Liege forts which still hold out and which are still well supplied with ammunition. Belgian reinforcements have been sent to Liege."

Enraged when his demand for a twenty four armistice to "collect the wounded and bury the dead" was refused, General Von Emmich, the German commander, today ordered his entire army against Liege today. The seventh, ninth and tenth corps are engaged and the battle line embraces the entire chain of the Liege fortifications.

The slaughter is terrible as the Belgian fire is deadly. The Germans are advancing over open spaces that have been accurately mapped and the range determined by the Belgians. German field artillery, mortars and siege guns are in action pouring thousands of exploding shells into the Belgian fortresses.

General Gumbour declared that the request for an armistice was intended only to permit the Germans to hurry up two additional army corps that were pressing forward from Cologne. The Germans have been outwitted at every point to date. The Belgians have apparently fallen back defeated and, whenever the Germans have rushed forward, they have been trapped. This ruse has worked several times. In addition seven regiments of German cavalry who have managed to cross the Meuse were surprised by Belgians and literally cut to pieces. Those not killed or wounded were forced to surrender.

The governor of Liege reported to the war offices today that up to the present, the entire Belgian losses totaled only 8,000 men in killed and wounded, as against 30,000 to the Germans.

The Germans are reported as continuing their advance on Meuse despite the heavy losses already sustained. It is believed here that they desire to overwhelm the defending Belgian forces by sheer weight of numbers. It is understood the main advance is being led by portions of the Seventh army corps which is commanded by General Von Dittmarer and by the flower of General Von Emmich's Tenth corps with the ninth corps, that has already borne the brunt of the fighting and suffered very heavy losses held in reserve.

That the Germans intend to capture Liege is indicated by the reports that further reinforcements are being brought up. In addition other German armies are moving to reinforce the army that invaded Luxembourg.

The French forces are moving through Belgium as rapidly as possible and it is reported at the war office that the advance guard of 200,000 Frenchmen have already effected a junction with the Belgian army at a point not made public. It is known that French and German skirmishers have been in contact at Narvelan and this is believed here to be the prelude to serious fighting there.

The reports received here indicate that in today's fighting the Germans are continuing their display of wonderful bravery. In the face of withering fire from the fort guns, they have been steadily pushing their lines forward and although repulsed in general charges have been able to bring their artillery much closer to the Belgian forts.

Returning from the front today, 9th regiment of the army defending Liege, paraded through the streets of Antwerp, carrying German helmets upon their bayonets. With their tokens of victory, the regiment aroused the people of Antwerp to a frenzy of patriotic enthusiasm.

Vast throngs cheered and wept as the regiment marched through the city. Every man carried a German helmet perched high on his bayonet as a trophy of the fight.

AIR FIGHTS MAY DECIDE THE WAR

Experts Believe They Will be a Big Factor in European Conflict Now Being Waged

MARK PROGRESS IN WARFARE

They Say Air Crafts Will Have More Fighting Value Than Water Vessels Due to Mobility

New York, August 8.—Aeronautical experts are reckoning the aircraft strength of the nations expected to fly at one another's throats in European war, knowing the vital part flying machines will play in a great war.

The experts say they probably will be a deciding factor. They will be used for scouting and for general warfare. Only three of the nations involved, however, have advanced in aeronautics sufficiently to be reckoned with in aerial warfare. They are France, Germany and England. For the last year these nations have been putting armor on their aeroplanes and equipping them with aerial guns for the fighting of battles.

France has the greatest number of aeroplanes, 1,200. Germany and Russia come next. Whether Russia has 600 or 800 of them is not known, for the military authorities there have tried their best to shroud military aeronautics in mystery.

In dirigibles Germany is supreme. She has the largest number of them.

"It is now the general opinion," said Henry Woodhouse, editor of Flying, and a prominent member of the Aero Club of America, "that an airship has more actual fighting value than a battle ship, its ability to operate at night and its excess of speed over the fastest battle ship being considered factors unequalled in value by the best features of battle ships."

"Adding the fact that the best airships can be built, housed and operated for a year at a fraction of the cost of a battleship, it is not surprising that Germany's aeronautical program involves the expenditure of $35,000,000, and England, France, Italy and Russia are constantly adding to their airship fleet. The problem of defending airships from aeroplanes, which perplexed the authorities up to a year ago, is being solved by making the aeroplanes auxiliaries of airships, to defend them from attacking aeroplanes, and the airships are being equipped with machine guns to fire at aeroplanes at long range."

Here is what Admiral Sir Percy Scott of the British Navy has said: "Submarines and aeroplanes have entirely revolutionized naval warfare. No fleet can hide itself from the aeroplane's eye, and the submarines can deliver a deadly attack even in broad daylight. Under these circumstances I can see no use for battleships and very little chance of much employment for fast cruisers. What we require is an enormous fleet of submarines and aeroplanes and a few fast cruisers."

Secretary of war Lindley M. Garrison says: "The records achieved and the progress made by heavier-than-air machines and power driven lighter-than-air vehicles have demonstrated beyond operation. Air power will be one of the dominant factors controlling the policies of the great powers in the future, as sea power has been in the past."

"The absence or presence of an efficient air force will be a deciding element in hostile operations, and the commander who is without such a force will be greatly hampered from the outset of operations. Information as to the location and movements of the enemy is absolutely essential to any commander, and such information has been usually obtained by the active use of cavalry in contact with the enemy or by secret service within his lines. An efficient air force will not only supplement, but anticipate the reconnaissance work of the cavalry, and can penetrate miles beyond the line of contact, provided, it is not opposed by similar or better aircraft of the enemy."

"Leading military authorities have agreed that the functions of these new war engines are fourfold—for reconnaissance, both strategical and tactical; for the prevention of reconnaissance on the part of an enemy, for communication purposes, and for destructive action against an enemy.

"While the United States was the first nation to recognize the possibilities of the aeroplane in war and to evolve the first type for military purposes, the exigencies of the great powers of Europe have led them to develop their aerial fleets to a much greater extent has been done in our country."

Good Roads and Bad

George Fitch, who can be humorous in spite of the fact that he lives in Peoria, considers the road question in Collier's this week and attributes much of the greatness of Illinois to bad roads, a paradox it would seem, but hear him:

"Illinois is making violent effort to improve its roads. After trying every other known method it now proposes to roof them over with concrete, thus allowing traffic to ride over them instead of through them."

"This is a peculiarly ungrateful proceeding on the part of Illinois because she owes her early greatness to her famous unclaginous mud highways. A century ago the tide of civilization set westward from Ohio and points east. It got as far as Illinois and then stopped—because it couldn't get any farther. Thousands of hardy pioneers tugged, dragged, pried and otherwise coerced their moving-wagons into the bosom of Illinois—the soft, yielding, gluey, gurgly bosom—then they gave up in despair and raised a crop. That settled it. When they found how useful the Illinois mud was except for road-making purposes they stayed on and became rich and prosperous."

"Lincoln's folks struggled knee deep through Illinois as far as Decatur and then settled down to wait for good roads. While waiting Lincoln grew up and became president. If Illinois roads had been navigable in the twenties of the last century, Lincoln might have been given to the nation by Iowa or Missouri—but the soil held on to him with such desperate energy that he never got west of Springfield."

"However, not even history and early service can save the rare old three-dimension Illinois gumbo roads. The state desires thoroughfares which will not climb affectionately into the fendered automobile and creep into the watch pocket of the traveler. More Americans are traveling by automobile now than ever journeyed by stagecoach in the brave old days when a city on a good post road became a metropolis because of the traffic which passed through it, and the state which meets these travelers at its borders with a chuck hole and a team of horses is not wise."

Audiences Are Small

Writing from Chicago, a special political correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer (Dem) says:

"Albert J. Beveridge made a brief tour of Illinois presumably in the interests of the Bull Moose party, but more particularly for the purpose of attacking the candidacies of Joseph G. Cannon, William McKinley, and W. A. Rodenberg, who are seeking to go back to Congress. It may have been the hot weather, or some other cause, but the talented Indian was not enthusiastic. Returning to Indianapolis, however, Beveridge gave out an interview in which he said he was highly enthusiastic over the prospects in Illinois, and believed Raymond Robins, the Bull Moose candidate for the United States Senate, would be elected. This may be so, but it is news to Illinois."

GREAT WAR WILL
SETTLE FACTOR

Power of Submarine, as Well as Unknown, is Much Dreaded by all Commanders

NEVER HAVE BEEN TESTED

Psychological Effect of Knowledge That Enemy Has Them in Use Will be Factor

New York, Aug. 8. — "Submarines will be the unknown quantity in the next naval conflict," said a prominent naval tactician. "In the more recent naval battles, notably those of the Spanish-American and the Russo-Japanese wars, all of the sea-fighting was a straight case of 'knock down and drag out.' The battleships met and brought side to side. The Spanish fleet made a running fight, but the American battleships were fast enough to get practically alongside, and it became a test of gunnery, men and armor. The battles of the Russo-Japanese war were similar—the combatants got together and fought it out, and the best men and guns won. In none of these conflicts did submarines play any part."

"In the naval battles of the near future—and now that the war cloud bids fair to break over Europe, I might say of the present—the submarine is either going to be the deadliest weapon or the greatest failure in the armament of nations."

"Now, before the acid test—before their actual performance in battle—the submarines are a dreaded unknown force. The psychological effect of the knowledge that the enemy is likely to use submarines will be a vital factor in all attacks by water or in naval engagements. From the captain or commodore with the responsibility of $10,000,000 worth of dreadnought and the lives of 1,200 men on his shoulders, down to the stokers, the fear that annihilation may come at any moment from the very depths of the ocean will be a disquieting thought."

"Unlike the dirigible or aeroplane, the submarine is invisible. Its periscope or 'eye' is so minute an object and is above the water so seldom that the detection and forestalling of a submarine attack is practically impossible. Its night attacks, such as may take place when harbors are blockaded, a fleet must keep moving perpetually, and then it is not safe. The submarine, being invisible, can lie in the track of the battleships, and deal its death blow as they pass. The strongest searchlights can not pick submarines up, except when they are running on the surface, and then it is no easy thing to do."

"It was thought that the U-Boats would put the submarines out of business, but now that they have turned out to be a 'fake' the battleships have no defense. By exploding the torpedoes before they left the submarine the U-Boats would have made the submarine corps a 'suicide corps.'"

"That the submarines are as deadly to themselves as to the enemy is the view accepted by those who serve on them. Leaving out all accidents, it is safe to predict that the shock of the submarine's torpedo exploding against the side of a dreadnought will be sufficient to cave in the sides of the submarine and cause its loss, and the death of its crew. A recent test in Portsmouth, England, showed that thirty pounds of gunpowder exploded under water had sufficient force to destroy a submarine within a radius of one hundred feet."

"All defense against submarines is based on a knowledge of their position, either exact or superficial. The Ording-Armstrong torpedo, as used by the British navy, can be controlled and exploded by wireless. One plan is to direct a number of torpedoes of this type to a spot where submarine is suspected and explode them when they are near the spot. This is the same idea as the man who takes a ten-bore gun and goes after deer with buckshot."

Ninety per cent of his shot miss, but the others do the work.

"It is generally accepted that a submarine detected is a submarine destroyed, and several ingenious plans have been evolved to do away with it. In Portsmouth, a short time ago, extensive experiments were made with 'spar torpedoes.' These are explosives on the end of a long spar, and are carried over the bow of a thirty-knot destroyer. The tests were made with a large barrel, to which was fixed a periscope. The barrel was sunk so that just the 'eye' would show as the waves washed over it. A destroyer, the Starfish, was sent after it, and on the first trial blew the barrel to atoms."

"Drag nets have been tried with success. Destroyers with these great nets between them have been able to catch the submarines, but in several of the tests the destroyers have been technically destroyed by a torpedo from the submarine. Of course the submarine would have been destroyed itself, but the naval advantage lay with the submarine, the percentage of loss in men and money being about 100 to 1."

"Taking all things into consideration, it is safe to say that there is no defense against the submarine unless it is detected, and now that it can remain under water from twenty to twenty-four hours and have a cruising radius of more than thirty miles, it will be very hard to discover."

"England has by far the greatest number of submarines and it is conceded that they are more highly developed than those of the other nations. Her submarine corps has had much experience and is most efficient. There are now about seventy-five submarines ready for active service in the British navy. Many of these can be carried on the deck of a dreadnought and shipped into the water just before a battle or an attack on a blockading fleet. Germany has twenty-seven submarines, France fifty-five, Russia fourteen, Austria six, and the other European nations have about thirty between them."

"Naval officers have differed in opinion regarding the destructive power and military of the submarines, but Sir Percy Scott, the well-known British naval authority, thinks very highly of them. He said recently that submarines and torpedo boats would decide the naval battles of the near future, and backed his contention with strong proofs. England, if what he says is correct, will have a tremendous advantage over its adversaries, owing to the great number and high efficiency of her submarines."

CHAUTAUQUA TO CLOSE SUNDAY

and told me that last kiln had fallen down.

"But even then, without a cent of money left, I was not discouraged. I took my watch to Montgomery and pawned it. When I returned I had nine dollars. With that we started another kiln. It worked and today we have 97 large buildings, all the work of our own students. During our last brick making period we made something like three million bricks."

Mr. Washington's address was confined to his work with the negro race and his accomplishments with the school for colored people at Tuskegee, Ala. He recalled that a few years ago newspapers and some of the higher critics predicted that the race problem had been solved when 600 negroes sailed back to their native land. But Mr. Washington said that same morning before breakfast 600 more negroes had been born. The critics did not take that into consideration. He asserted the problems had to be faced and settled here.

He ridiculed the idea of segregation. He said it would be absurd to build a wall to confine the negroes to a given territory and that it would take more than five walls to keep the white men out. He declared his race had some advantages as well as disadvantages. He recalled that history shows it was the only race that ever came to America on urgent invitation. He remembered that our forefathers landed here against the wishes of the "leading citizens" of North America. He said the negro was not only invited here, but that his transportation was paid. He asserted it would be ungracious on the part of the negro not to remain.

"I believe," he said "there is enough Christianity and forbearance here and we are all Christians enough for each race to live out its destiny side by side."

Mr. Washington was born in 1858 or '59 in Virginia. He is not sure about the exact time or place, but he said he was sure he was born. After the war, he said, the question of the future came to his mother as to every other negro just set free, and they moved to the coal mining district of West Virginia and he was hired out as a helper in the coal mines. One day he heard two negro miners telling of a negro school at Hampton and a desire at once arose in his breast to go there. He started on foot, walking a distance of 500 miles. He told of his entrance examination, which consisted of sweeping a room. He passed it successfully and gained his first education.

He taught school in West Virginia for a time and then went to the black belt of Alabama, where, in some countries, negroes outnumber the whites as high as ten to one. There, he asserted, the race problem was most serious. He said when he first started his work, his aims were very selfish, but that he has nothing now but one ambition to serve the best interest of all the people of the south.

"There is no form of slavery," he continued with great emphasis, "so great as that which sets one race against another. It is that racial hatred that the people across the water are paying the price for now."

Mr. Washington established the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute in 1881, with one teacher and thirty students. The students multiplied until an old cabin, the first home of the Institute, grew too small and an old hen house had to be used in addition. During regular sessions the student body numbers over 1,600, who come from 36 different states and among whom 17 foreign countries or colonies are represented. There are 197 instructors. The trustees own and control 3,000 acres of land and 97 buildings have been erected through the aid of the students. The estimated value of the holdings of the Institute is $1,500,000 and there is not a mortgage on it. The annual cost of administration is $275,000. He declared that hands and dollars meant nothing in his achievement because they were not the ends attained, but the means to an end.

"Since there are 10,000,000 negroes in the United States," he continued, "9,000,000 of whom live in the south and 85 per cent of whom live off the soil, we said we would try to help this class. We are trying to brush aside artificiality and get down to bed rock. We are trying to face the facts insofar as our race is concerned. We have kept in mind we were working with a young race that has to pass through the same silly period as the boy. You have to be patient with the boy. Lots of people have overlooked the fact that the negro race has to pass through the same period. You used to say, when a negro who had been educated got a cane and a big cigar, 'that is what education does for the negro.' But with few exceptions the educated negroes of the south have learned that education should be signified by humility."

"At Tuskegee we are not teaching agriculture. I have heard you people up here talk considerable about this thing. We have just plain farming. Neither do we teach any household art or domestic science. We have just a plain cooking course. This domestic science and household art may be all right, but some times the household art and the cooking gets mixed up on the table and then there is trouble."

He told of the objections he met with when he first started Tuskegee. Negroes thought it foolish to teach their children how to work when they had been worked all their life. They believed work shouldn't ever be mentioned. But Mr. Washington showed them the difference between working and being worked. Being worked, he said, meant slavery, and working meant freedom. Through the efforts of Tuskegee, he asserted, much of the prejudice of the southern negro against work has been broken down.

He told of the reformation in the methods of education at Tuskegee. He said they stood a few of those "Beyond-Italy-Lies-the-Alps" commencements and then they called a halt. Now they work with things as they are. They do not acquire all of their knowledge from texts, without consideration of the things about them. Now the commencement exercises consist of demonstrations in cooking by the girls and talks, with the proofs, by the boys. There are no talks, he said, on "The Psychology of Turnips." He said the work of the Institute would accomplish nothing unless its knowledge were spread broadcast. Educated negroes are being sent out continually.

Mr. Washington gave some astounding figures. In the south the negroes own 20,000,000 acres of land, a body as large as the New England states, excluding Maine. They own 700,000 houses and pay taxes on $700,000,000 worth of property. This means of course, that it's value is much greater than that. They own 10,000 dry goods stores, 100 drug stores and own or control 60 banks. When they were freed only three per cent could read or write, but now 69 per cent can. This is higher than in many foreign countries. He recalled congress had never been compelled to appropriate money to keep the negro, where as congress pays out $12,000,000 annually to support 100,000 Indians. He recalled that the negro seldom begs. Furthermore, he said, the negro adapts himself more quickly to American ways than any foreigner. He dresses the same way, eats the same food, has the same religion and is an American citizen first, last and all the time.

Prizes in the flower growing contest conducted by the Rushville Civic Improvement and Social Service association were awarded late Thursday afternoon at the Coliseum. There were fifty-one entries and two prizes for each of the four sections of the city in each class. The first prize was 50 cents and the second prize was 25 cents. The prizes totaled $16.75. There were eight varieties of which prizes were given, but in some instances prizes were not awarded because there were no entries in the class. Mrs. R. G. Budd, Mrs. R. A. Innis and Mrs. Ed Crosby were the judges.

The prizes were as follows: an eucalyptus, Lulu Carlyle won first in the second division and Clifford Champion first in the third; on mar-

HEAVY HITTING FEATURES GAME

A. B. C.'s Have Little Trouble Defeating Leland Giants of Chicago 15 to 10.

MANY LONG HITS WERE MADE

The A. B. C.'s defeated the Leland Giants of Chicago yesterday at the South Main street park by the score of 15 to 10. The game was witnessed by a large crowd of fans and the colored teams afforded much amusement. The game itself did not amount to much and was a heavy hitting affair. Two home runs in the first inning and several triples scattered throughout the nine inning shows that it was a free hitting game.

"String Bean" William for the A. B. C.'s was hit hard but the hits did not come when they were needed. Score by innings:

A. B. C.	1	2	0
Batteries	Garford	and	Belger;

CHICKEN DINNER FOR WASHINGTON

Colored People Entertain in Honor of Southern Negro Educator at
Second M. E. Church.

DELIVERS BRIEF ADDRESS

Following the lecture last night at the chautauqua Booker T. Washington was entertained at the Second M. E. church. A fried chicken dinner was served and the local colored people spared no pains in making the event a notable one. Twenty-four chickens were used in the feast.

A large crowd was in attendance including several visitors from surrounding cities. Prof. J. H. Williams, of Washington, Ind., former teacher in the Washington school here was present and introduced Mr. Washington. In a brief address Mr. Washington gave some advice to his people here and told of his work in the south. The noted colored speaker left this morning for Huntington where he delivers an address to night.

— Mrs. George Smalley and Mrs. Ollie Newhouse of this city left today to attend the meeting of a Baptist association in Indianapolis.

M. P. Jones Again Discovers Evidence of a Mastaden.

Workmen in a gravel pit on the farm of N. P. Jones in Center township, unearthed two pieces of bone supposed to be parts of the jaw bone of a giant mastaden, this week. One of the pieces weighed forty pounds and had three large teeth attached. The other piece weighed twenty pounds and had two teeth. The bones and teeth were in fairly good condition. Mr. Jones had the pieces in the city today and they attracted great attention. He found pieces he thought to be parts of a mastaden a few years ago.

METEOR DISPLAY SUNDAY

Strange Things Booked to Happen
Tomorrow Night

(By United Press.)

Washington, Aug. 8.—There won't be a bit of use going up in the air or suddenly taking the pledge if you see strange things happening in the sky tomorrow night. Of course, if tomorrow happens to be cloudy, it's all off. But if the night should be clear, expect most anything. Tomorrow night, according to officials of the Naval Observatory is the one night in the year that thousands of mysterious little meteors and shooting stars which seem to emerge from the constellation Perseus, make their appearance. Perseus hangs low over the eastern sky and tomorrow, if he acts according to his contract, will send innumerable glowing streaks and miniature comets across the sky every few minutes. These streaks leave in their trail particles which pass continually around the sun.

STAY BY CIRCUIT PLAN

Shelbyville Chautauqua Directors
Turn Down Independent Idea

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Shelbyville chautauqua association yesterday afternoon the proposed plan for an independent circuit was rejected and that association signed a contract for another year with the circuit they are now on. A representative of the circuit chautauqua was present and presented a proposition that the board did not believe it could afford to turn down and signal for another year. The independent idea was looked upon favorably but the Shelbyville people did not believe they were ready for the change.

WILL PLAY VERY IMPORTANT PART

Recent Conference With Former
Progressives at Republican
Headquarters Brings Responses.

GNE FROM SARGENT, INDIANA

Business Man Writes That he Was Progressive in 1912 But Will Work For G. O. P. This Year.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 8.—Indications continue to pile up that the recent conference at Republican state headquarters between State Chairman Will H. Hays and 125 former Progressive leaders is to have highly important bearing on the political situation in the state this year. Letters continue to pour into Republican state headquarters from former Progressives in every section of the state expressing their approval of the action taken at the conference and expressing the hope that the active organization work in behalf of the Republican party by former Progressives will be extended to every precinct in the state.

The following letter from a business man of Sargent, Indiana, who was an active Progressive earlier in 1912, is typical of the hundreds of messages that have been received at Republican headquarters. F. M. Sargent, head of F. M. Sargent & Co., writes as follows:

"Your invitation to attend a conference of former Progressives at Indianapolis, Thursday, July 30 was received in due time, but owing to previous arrangements I could not be there. We had lots of Progressives in this part of the country two years ago but they are very scarce now. Everything looks very favorable for the success of the Republican party this fall. I think the local Progressive organization is doing all they can for the Democratic party. Anytime I can be of assistance in any way, I am ready to do what I can."

PORTUGAL WILL STAY BY ENGLAND

Parliament Today Adopts Resolution
Tendering its Support to British in Conflict

PART OF ARMY MOBILIZED

(By United Press.)

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 8.—Parliament today adopted a resolution announcing its intention to stand by England in the present war. Whether that intention is to take the form of openly declaring war on Germany or whether it will be to throw Portuguese ports open to British warships for their use is still to be determined.

The premier afterward introduced a resolution tendering the support of Portugal to England with condition. The resolution was responsible for a demonstration from every section of the chamber in honor of England and France.

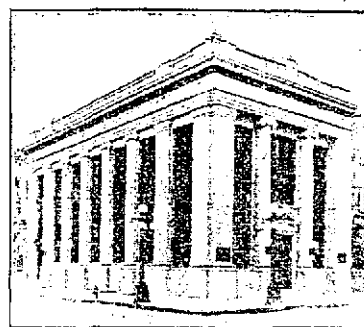

The war office has ordered the mobilization of three divisions of the army.
